FOREWORD

The United States House of Representatives will be two hundred years old on March 4, 1989. In the past two centuries, over 10,000 men and women have served in the House. Some served for one term, or less, while others spent long careers spanning more than half a century. The lives and actions of these individuals represent an important part of the history of the United States of America. Just a brief list of some of the persons who have served in the House of Representatives suggests a panorama of the American experience: John Quincy Adams, William Jennings Bryan, Joseph G. Cannon, Shirley Chisholm, Henry Clay, Davy Crockett, Gerald R. Ford, James A. Garfield, Horace Greeley, William Randolph Hearst, Andrew Jackson, Lyndon B. Johnson, Fiorello La Guardia, John Mercer Langston, Abraham Lincoln, Nicholas Longworth, Clare Boothe Luce, James Madison, Horace Mann, Vito Marcantonio, John Marshall, Richard M. Nixon, James K. Polk, Adam Clayton Powell, Joseph Pulitzer, Jeannette Rankin, Sam Rayburn, Thomas B. Reed, Robert Smalls, and Daniel Webster.

Until the publication of this guide no single resource brought together descriptions of the rich historical materials in public repositories and private collections that are available for the study of those who have served in the House of Representatives. Students of the House now have an important research tool to help them locate material on many topics in Congressional history, biography, and political science. These collections contain the personal letters, diaries, office correspondence, scrapbooks, photographs, oral histories, and other historical material that supplement and enrich the official records of House committees stored at the National Archives in Washington, D.C., and the vast official printed record of acts of Congress, hearings, debates, investigations, and other Congressional activity. From these sources we can learn much about the history and the present actions of the House.

The Commission on the Bicentenary of the United States House of Representatives is pleased to see this guide published as part of the commemoration of the bicentennial of the House of Representatives. It will promote historical research on the House. And it will encourage current and former Members of the House to give serious consideration to the preservation of their papers and memorabilia as a vital part of this nation's documentary heritage. Without such records there can be no accurate history of the first branch of government.

One of the legacies of our bicentennial celebration should be an increased interest in the preservation and use of the historical records of the House of Representatives so future generations can profit from this remarkable story of representative government under the United States Constitution.

U.S. House of Representatives

INTRODUCTION

In 1984, the Office for the Bicentennial of the U.S. House of Representatives embarked on an ambitious national survey to locate manuscript collections and other historical material relating to former Members of the House of Representatives. The historical material left by many of these individuals represents an important and largely untapped resource of American history. The collections reveal not only the legislative work of the Congress but also the other careers and interests of the Representatives, many of whom had distinguished careers in fields other than national politics.

The very diversity that gives breadth and scope to the House of Representatives is, paradoxically, an obstacle to its study. The large number of individuals who have served in the House, particularly in the 19th century when most Members remained for only a term or two, and the random and often haphazard dispersal of their personal papers have prevented scholars from recreating comprehensive accounts of many aspects of the history of the U.S. House of Representatives.

This guide is designed to make the rich history contained in thousands of collections of former Members of the House more accessible to researchers by providing a central listing of the whereabouts of these scattered resources. The information contained in the collections covers local, state, national, and international issues, touching virtually every aspect of American life and culture.

The survey that led to this publication relied on volunteer state coordinators and a small army of concerned archivists, historians, librarians, and records managers in all fifty states. The coordinators, who generously agreed to assist in this bicentennial effort, were persons familiar with repositories likely to contain papers of former Members. The other volunteers also provided valuable links in the network that developed among libraries and archives within each state and the Office for the Bicentennial of the House of Representatives in Washington, D.C.

The Office for the Bicentennial conducted a systematic survey of the master card catalog of the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections (NUCMC) at the Library of Congress. We also searched many published guides to specific repositories. In addition, we received information from individual researchers, who graciously passed along sources located in the course of their work.

This guide lists information from 592 repositories containing historical material on approximately 3300 former Members. Included are former Representatives and Territorial Delegates from all fifty states as of December 31, 1987. Former Delegates from territories other than the fifty states and Representatives in the 100th Congress are not included. The volume contains information on Members of the House who also served in the U.S. Senate.

The guide is arranged alphabetically by Representative, followed by birth and death dates, and an abbreviation for the state(s) or territory represented. If the name of the state remained the same as the territory that preceded it, we do not make a distinction of territorial status in the main heading. Often the distinction between territorial or state status is clarified in the collection description. If a Member was known by a name other than his given name, the familiar name is in parentheses.

Under each Member's name the repositories are listed alphabetically, citing their holdings of papers and/or oral histories. The citation includes encompassing dates of the collection, size of the collection, and brief descriptive remarks. If the Member's papers are part of a larger collection, quantitative information about the whole collection as well as information about the Member's papers has been included whenever such information was reported to us. Every effort has been made to include a complete, yet concise, description.

Descriptions sent to us by repositories responding to our survey have been included in full as reported, except for a few minor editorial changes to promote clarity. Consequently, the citation style and the amount of descriptive detail vary from repository to repository. Although we sought collections of ten items or more, size is not necessarily the best indicator of the quality of a collection. Many published guides and some reporting repositories listed collections smaller than ten items, even individual letters. In the interest of providing as much information as possible, we have included these smaller collections. If the Member is the subject of a documentary publication project, that citation follows the alphabetical list of repositories.

The information in this guide has been cross-checked for accuracy by comparing several sources whenever possible, but ultimately it is only as accurate as the data submitted to us on our survey forms or in the published sources we examined. Furthermore, as researchers know, archives are not static institutions. Newly acquired material, or better descriptions of old material will change the quantities and descriptions listed here. Researchers are encouraged to contact the repositories directly for more detailed information regarding their holdings and any access restrictions that may apply.

Information that supplements the alphabetical entries follows the main body of the text:

—The names of Representatives whose papers have not been located or whose papers are privately held.

—Addresses of repositories responding to the survey, listed alphabetically by state.

—Documentary publication projects which relate to the history of the federal government.

—A chronological table of sessions of Congress.

—A copy of the survey form. This may be duplicated and used to report additional collections to the Office for the Bicentennial of the House of Representatives.

This guide does not include all possible sources that may contain letters and historical material related to the careers of former Members of the House of Representatives. If the Member, for example, was a federal or state official, ambassador, president of a university, or corporate executive, official papers regarding that aspect of his career may be found in the appropriate archives.

Official committee records of the House, under the jurisdiction of the Clerk of the House, which contain material pertinent to the careers of individual Members, are in the National Archives. A guide to these records entitled Guide to the Records of the United States House of Representatives at the National Archives 1789–1989, Bicentennial Edition, will be published in 1989. Researchers should consult the National Archives' Center for Legislative Archives for guidelines regarding access to these records.

Other publications useful to Congressional researchers are: Guide to Research Collections of Former United States Senators 1789–1982. U.S. Senate Historical Office, 1983, which will be updated in 1989, and Guide to Records of the U.S. Senate at the National Archives 1789–1989 Bicentennial Edition, to be published in 1989.

We still do not know the whereabouts of the papers of thousands of former Members of the House of Representatives. A list, "Location of Papers Unknown," is included in the guide to help individual researchers and archivists to identify the names of former Members of the House whose papers were not located through our survey or may appear in the collections of others. This guide represents the first step in developing a more comprehensive data base. We expect to update this information on a regular basis. Repositories holding congressional papers are encouraged to report additional collections to the Office for the Bicentennial of the U.S. House of Representatives.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

A guide of this magnitude could not have been undertaken without the generous assistance of many people.

Special thanks are due the staffs of the House of Representatives Office of Printing Services and the House Information Systems for the technical expertise with which they created special programs for the database necessary for this project and for the wisdom and imagination with which they solved problems.

Interns and other staff of the Office for the Bicentennial of the House of Representatives who made substantial contributions to this guide are: Matthew Berger, Kathleen English, Peter Feinberg, Christopher Fortunato, Martin Gurganis, Theodore M. Lienhart, Dan Miskowitz, Michael J. Reimer, Carol Staszewski, and Joel Treese.

From the beginning we have had unstinting support from historians, archivists, and librarians in all fifty states and the District of Columbia. They have shared finding aids and their own research, answered our survey forms, responded to telephone inquiries, and encouraged the project in innumerable ways. For all of this we are profoundly grateful. We are particularly indebted to the following people, many of whom served as state coordinators:

SESSIONS OF CONGRESS

[See notes at end of table]

Congress	Session	Date of beginning	Date of adjournment	Length in days	Recesses		President pro tempore of the Senate [1]	Speaker of the House of Representatives
					Senate	House
100th	1	Jan. 6, 1987					John C. Stennis, of Mississippi	James C. Wright, Jr., of Texas

[1] For many years the appointment or election of a President pro tempore was held by the Senate to be for the occasion only, so that more than one appear in several sessions and in others none was chosen. Since Mar. 12, 1890, they have served until "the Senate otherwise ordered."

[2] The Constitution (Art. I, sec. 4) provided that "The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year * * * on the first Monday in December, unless they shall by law appoint a different day." Pursuant to a resolution of the Continental Congress, the first session of the First Congress convened Mar. 4, 1789. Up to and including May 20, 1820, 18 acts were passed providing for the meeting of Congress on other days in the year. Since that year Congress met regularly on the first Monday in December until 1934, when the twentieth amendment to the Constitution became effective, changing the meeting of Congress to Jan. 3. The first and second sessions of the First Congress were held in New York City; subsequently, including the first session of the Sixth Congress, Philadelphia was the meeting place; since then Congress has convened in Washington, D.C.

[3] Elected to count the vote for President and Vice President, which was done Apr. 6, 1789, a quorum of the Senate then appearing for the first time. John Adams, Vice President, appeared Apr. 21, 1789, and took his seat as President of the Senate.

[4] Elected Speaker pro tempore for Apr. 20, 1798, and again for May 28, 1798.

[5] Elected Speaker Jan. 19, 1814, vice Henry Clay, who resigned Jan. 19, 1814.

[6] Elected Speaker Nov. 15, 1820, vice Henry Clay, who resigned Oct. 28, 1820.

[7] Elected Speaker June 2, 1834, vice Andrew Stevenson, of Virginia, resigned.

[8] Elected Speaker Mar. 3, 1869, and served 1 day.

[9] Died Aug. 19, 1876.

[10] Appointed Speaker pro tempore Feb. 17, May 12, June 19.

[11] Appointed Speaker pro tempore June 4.

[12] Resigned as President pro tempore Apr. 27, 1911.

SURVEY INFORMATION SHEET AND REPORTING INSTRUCTIONS

Volunteer State Coordinators

We have enlisted the volunteer help of professional archivists, librarians, and historians in each State who are familiar with their State's resources. We hope you will contact your State Coordinator and discuss any particular reporting problems that may arise. If we can get enough volunteer help in each State, the task of reporting will not become a burden to a few individuals. In some States with numerous public and private repositories, it may be prudent for the State Coordinator to enlist the help of someone at each repository. The names of all persons contributing to the survey will be acknowledged in the Bicentennial publication.

The names of the State Coordinators are available from the Office for the Bicentennial.

IMPORTANT NOTE

This reporting form is designed to provide a standardized method of organizing the data needed to complete the survey. It is possible that it may not conform to the way in which your material is organized. If it is more convenient for you to simply send us photocopies of your existing finding aids, shelf lists, or file cards, it is not necessary to complete this form.

TIMETABLE

The Office for the Bicentennial will enter information into a computer data base as soon as we receive it. The goal is to complete the survey by March 1, 1987. Publication of the data should take place in late 1987.

Reporting Form Instructions

1. This survey is designed to locate "significant collections" of manuscripts, oral histories, diaries, unpublished memoirs, and political memorabilia that relate primarily to the Congressional career of the subject. The term "significant collections" is an arbitrary one, and one that cannot be measured by quantity alone. The survey does not seek to locate every individual letter written by former Members of the House that may be scattered in other collections. The survey seeks to locate clearly definable collections that will help researchers studying the U.S. House of Representatives.
2. If the collection has already been reported to the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections (NUCMC), please provide the NUCMC number. No other information is necessary.
3. The "Descriptive Remarks" section is provided for further information that you think will help researchers determine the value of the collection or to describe any restrictions on use.
4. Any questions concerning the survey or this reporting form should be directed to your State Coordinator or to the National Survey Director. All reporting forms or photocopies of your descriptive finding aids or file cards should be returned to:
